

DOINGS OF THE WORLD BOILED DOWN

'Tis a sad reflection on the lasting qualities of friendship to hear Theodore and Will calling each other them harsh names, and swiping each other's delegates.

On the other hand, see how Francisco I. Madero's old pals are wiping their feet on him.

Dr. Franz Szekely, Budapest, announces he has discovered way of grafting hair on bald heads by means of gold wires.

Not wishing to reflect on the skill of Dr. Umptidyum, why doesn't he turn the trick by means of the good old U. S. gold brick?

Rumor around Tokio, Japan says Yuan Shi Kai, president of China, is suffering from bats in his belfry:

Well, would you faint with astonishment to learn that Yuan's job had driven him nuts?

Senator Kenyon, of Iowa, romped around the senate yesterday afternoon, saying Ikey Stephenson of Wisconsin, should be expelled from that "greatest deliberative body in the world."

Evidently we've got to let Kenyon into a secret. It's this: Sometimes the pot don't dare call the kettle black for fear it might attract attention to itself.

Town council of Magyerkata, Hungary, all members of which are married, have placed tax on bachelors. Proceeds to go to asylum for homeless children.

Poisoned sausages scattered about streets of Wausaukee, Wis. have killed over 200 dogs. 1 dog escaped. It didn't like sausage.

Oakland, Cal., Socialists charge

police there used "Lawrence tactics" in breaking up Socialist meeting Sunday night, and have preferred charges against police.

Admiral Aubry, Commander-in-chief of Italian naval forces in Tripoli, died at Taranto.

While Governor Tener, of Pennsylvania, was standing on platform of his private car at Coatsville, Pa., an old man slipped a quarter into his hand, and asked him to mail a letter. Tener did.

Dr. Klimazewski, Munich, fined $50 because he left woman patient's nose exposed to X-Ray until tip of it burned off.

Really, the only adequate punishment for Dr. Klimazewski would be some of those old-fashioned ideas that were used in the days of the Spanish Inquisition.

Barge load of revolvers, knives, blackjacks and brass knuckles, confiscated by N. Y. police, to be dumped into Atlantic Ocean.

After swearing that baffling sickness he treated at Winslow, Ind., was not smallpox, Dr. John Miller changed his mind today when he, as well as the patient, was removed to the pest house.

"Wearing apparel abbreviated at both ends" is banned for teachers in state schools of Montana in edict issued by Supt. Downer.

But Downer didn't venture to say just how "abbreviated" at either end a teacher may wear—or not wear—her dress.

John P. Stanford, known as "The Boq Justice of Spokane, Wash.," pleaded guilty to obtain-
